

Part 4: Final Product

Due Date: TBD

When you want to take action for a cause, it is imperative that you are informed on the topic you are arguing for. Now that you have completed your research and organized it in an essay, it is time to spark a change through an action. Think of a way, other than your essay, that you can get your message out to the community. Will you create a petition? A video clip? A drive? Your final product should be something that can be physically shared with the community.

Learning Targets:

Process Skill: The student communicated by expressing ideas clearly and effectively

W.9-10.7. Conduct short as well as more sustained research projects to answer a question (including a self-generated question) or solve a problem; narrow or broaden the inquiry when appropriate; synthesize multiple sources on the subject, demonstrating understanding of the subject under investigation.

Brainstorming Questions:

How do I prefer to communicate?

Who should I communicate with to support my cause?

What resources do I have available to create a product to send my message?
